Patti Stanger to star in "Million Dollar Matchmaker"

May 31, 2016 by Kevin Ritchie

Patti Stanger is returning to television this summer in the WE tv series Million Dollar Matchmaker.

Earlier this year, the former Millionaire Matchmaker star inked a deal with the U.S. cable net to produce relationship programming. The new series will find Stanger helping wealthy clients find love through her Millionaire's Club dating service.

In each episode of the Thinkfactory Media-produced series, two clients will check in to a resort in North County San Diego where Stanger will put them through custom-tailored challenges designed to show them what they are doing wrong. That will be followed by a one-on-one tough love session with Stanger and an interview with the millionaire's surprise date.

Stanger's Millionaire Club experts include Candace, a law school grad with a degree in psychology; David, founder of FindingCupid.com; and Destin and Rachel, one of Stanger's favorite couples from her past work.

Million Dollar Matchmaker will premiere on WE tv on July 8 at 10 p.m. EST/PST.

Executive producers are Adam Freeman, Adam Reed, Spike Van Briesen, Rob Lee and Leslie Greif. Lauren Gellert, Sitarah Pendelton-Eaglin and David Stefanou are exec producing for the network. Stanger also serves as executive producer.
