

Star

February 18, 2013

STAR PLAYS CUPID FOR... BRITNEY!

Britney Spears, 31, is single and ready to mingle! After splitting from fiancé Jason Trawick, 41, the pop star and mother of two is officially back on the market and in need of a new man! The question is: Who should the lucky (and, let's face it, brave) guy be? Millionaire

Matchmaker Patti Stanger has a few candidates in mind, but reveals that she thinks the singer would be better off taking a break from the dating scene. "I think Britney needs dating detox — and my help!" she tells Star. ★

Patti's Picks

EMINEM: "Britney and Eminem would be great — they've had substance abuse issues, have straightened themselves out and now have kids! She needs a man who can be the calming force in her hectic life. And who knows? Maybe she'll start a rapping career!"

DANE COOK: "Britney is certainly a jokester, and Dane would absolutely make her laugh. He'd be a fun stepdad for her kids and has none of his own, so no baggage. Dane could open for her on the road, and they could have fun traveling together — both of them are born performers, so they would really get each other."

KRIS HUMPHRIES: "If Kris found another girl to love he'd let Kim go. He wants a family and Britney wants more kids, so it could work. Plus, his Midwestern ways are like the small-town values she craves. Who knows — maybe they'd make the baby basketball team he's always wanted!"

