She made her name as a Millionaire Matchmaker, so its no surprise that Patti Stanger's home is decorated for rather upmarket tastes.

The 52-year-old reality star opened the doors of her Marina Del Rey home for a magazine, showing off a monochrome palate of black, white and silver.

Patti engaged the services of celebrity interior designer Wade Hallock for the interior, which features wood floors, white walls and black couches.

'He did a great job keeping in mind that while I live on the beach and needed a home that I can entertain in, a touch of glamour can go a long way,' the New Jersey native told California Home + Design.com.

'Since I'm an East Coast girl I could live in black forever, but Wade suggested the colour yellow and I went yikes!' she recalls of Wade's vision. 'All I could think of was a bumblebee.'

'When I saw the finished product I knew he was right. The yellow colour made my black and white furnishings pop, creating the regency glamour look that I'm so fond of.'

The dining area shows a table and black leather couch, as well as chairs underneath an ornate chandelier and black wall.

According to the magazine, Patti is inspired by the Santa Monica Viceroy Hotel's lobby, the interior of Hollywood restaurant Beso, owned by Eva Longoria, Lisa Vanderpump's restaurant Sur and The Roosevelt Hotel's private roof deck overlooking the Hollywood sign.

Patti's bedroom is decorated along the same lines, with black and white patterned curtains, a burgundy wall and plush grey bed.

The star, who shot to fame back in 2008 with her Bravo Show Millionaire Matchmaker, is not short of advice for prospective couples, but also shares her decorating wisdom.

'Your home is something that is very personal and should be held close to your heart,' she tells the magazine.

'If you are lucky enough to share your home with your partner, it is important that the environment is welcoming and comfortable for both of you.'

Patti lives alone but has been dating mortgage broker David Krause, 44, who she met on dating website PlentyofFish.com in March 2012.

She told In Touch magazine of her boyfriend: 'He's the man in the relationship. I've never had that before. I need that. I call the shots all day at work and I'm exhausted. We're different. But we have real big chemistry and great sex - and that's important!

'I followed my book, Become Your Own Matchmaker. I did everything I wrote in there. I'm shocked it worked, to be honest with you. It works for other people, but for me, I didn't know it would!'
